Event Medical Provision

Over 20 years' experience in pre-hospital care.

What makes our event medical provision different?

Asgard Dynamics offer event medical provision that goes far above and beyond the legally required standard.

Whether you're planning a low-risk school fete or organising a large music festival, our pre-deployment planning ensures that you will receive the right level of medical care for your requirements.

Let's dive further into what this entails.

If you're organising a small event, you're likely to need a first aid treatment centre, along with paramedics and nurses.

On the other hand, a very large event, or a sporting event such as motocross, will need a much higher level of medical provision. For these events, we can provide nurses, doctors, advanced paramedics, ODPs and even anaesthetists if required.

Our aim is to avoid hospitalisation wherever possible. From cuts and grazes to wound closure, we can deal confidently with any clinical situation. In the event that transportation to hospital is necessary, you can rest assured that the patient will have received the ultimate level of pre-hospital care, with anaesthesia provided where necessary.

Our highly skilled team is confident working on foot, from the back of a vehicle, or at a static location for protracted periods of time. Many of our doctors even have experience working on helicopters, which can frequently be required at large or sporting events.

Our state-of-the-art equipment reflects the complex clinical situations that we often encounter.

Simply put, we're experts in medical provision for events of all sizes and locations.

Senior doctor oversight

We have an effective and robust clinical governance structure, with senior doctors present at all our events. Our clinicians have the benefit of the latest medical technology including:

- Satellite phones
- Secure communications to undertake telemedicine consults
- High-tech medical equipment
- Custom utility vehicles
- A pharmacy on par (and often exceeding) local ambulance services.

FAQs

What level of medical provision can Asgard Dynamics offer?

We offer all levels of medical provision, from small first aid treatment centres, equipped with nurses and paramedics, through to doctors, advanced paramedics, ODPs and even anaesthetists if required, for the ultimate level of pre-hospital care.

So, whatever type or size of event you're planning, we can provide you with the medical care you need.

Is event medical provision a legal requirement?

Yes, absolutely. In the UK, the Health and Safety \(First Aid\) Regulations 1981 covers first aid legal requirements for events. These regulations require that all events provide adequate and appropriate facilities, equipment, and personnel to ensure that employees, volunteer, and event attendees receive immediate medical attention if they are taken ill or injured on site.

As an event organiser, you have a legal duty of care to adequately assess the first aid requirements for your event, no matter how large or small.

For smaller events, just provide us with your initial risk assessment and we'll let you know if we have any questions. If you're planning an event on a larger scale, we'll conduct our own risk assessment in conjunction with your organisational team to ensure we're all on the same page.

Asgard Dynamics have a wealth of experience in conducting risk assessments for a wide range of events. Following our assessment, we will offer a suitable level of medical provision for your needs.

What kind of events can Asgard Dynamics offer medical provision for?

School fetes, music festivals, motocross rallies, rugby fun days, fundraising events... The list goes on. In fact, there really aren't many events that we can't offer medical provision for!
